With several incursions into the working world, she always returned to homemaking, the profession she knew best.

Creative by nature, she enjoyed all kinds of crafts from decoupage to fabric arts to card making. She delighted in creating, as well as shopping for, just the right gifts for the people she loved. With a sharp wit, a lively sense of humor, and a feisty personality, she loved to laugh and engage in conversation.

Betty will always be remembered as a devoted wife, a dedicated mom and grandmom, a loyal friend, and a diligent homemaker.

Interment will be private and a celebration of her life will be held at a later date.
