“ Deb..we never really got to know each other. Somehow got started off on the wrong foot. Although I loved you as a daughter I never had a chance to show it. I guess we were just too strong women who did not give each other a chance. I loved you and thought you were one hell of a nurse. I looked to you for answers to my medical questions. I know I was tuff for you to like me and you never called me mom or my name. We had a tuff if any relationship but really Deb we loved you dearly still miss and talk about you and everyone who knew you says what a great gal you were. I wish I could have got to really know you. Rest in peace. Maybe when we meet again we can be

“ Debbie - Two years ago today you left us and I miss you more and more every day. No one can replace a sister and best friend. I miss our phone calls, especially when something is going on. I miss my playmate - life is not the same for me. Not a day has gone by that I don't think about you and wish you were here with us. But I am glad that your battle is over and you are healthy and happy and pain free. I know that with you, Mom and Linda all together - Heaven became a better place and I look forward to the day I am with all of you. Missing you always and until we are together again - Sandra
