“ George, our favorite Army veteran, interior designer, prolific gardener, choir member, and all around wonderful, kind and loving friend. We are all saddened by this news, our hearts are broken but we know you will once again meet up with Lloyd and Ollie. We send our love to them, and keep some for yourself of course. Sorry I was not there for your final journey, may your memory be eternal with the Lord. P.S. We know you will rest well, love Bob, Audrey and Ian King

“ I spent my lifetime with George, in Waterford where he kept a beautiful garden and shared countless hours with Lloyd and my mother and stepfather, his dearest friends, which continued in Jupiter with my parents, even then his closest neighbors and friends. He was gentle, kind, and my family will miss him for the rest of our lives.

“ My friendship with George goes back many years from singing in the St Jude choir and being his neighbor at the Carriage House. We often shared gardening tips, talked about plants, birds and our beloved pets. We shared many laughs and meals together and often a cup of tea in his garden while watching the hummingbirds eat and play. George had a great sense of humor and was a kind man and good friend. A favorite memory of mine is when I took George to a turtle release at Loggerhead Marinelife Center. It was a magical, special experience for both of us. Rest in peace and sing with the angels.

“ My friendship with George began over 60 years ago in a little theater group in Loudoun County, Virginia, in the early 1960's. It continued as we moved in opposite directions, and communication lines were stretched from South Florida to Eastern Canada. But we never lost touch, and for the last several years we have had the pleasure of almost daily contact and weekly visits. I could always count on George for whatever I needed: news of mutual friends, consolation on the loss of a pet (or a boyfriend!), decorating tips, or just a friendly chat. George was a truly gentle man with a pleasant demeanor and a wonderful sense of humor. My memories of the good times will be with me until my last breath.

“ George was one of the loveliest souls I've ever had the privilege to be acquainted with. He went gently through this world with intelligence, wit, mad skills, and a great capacity to love. How lucky I was to be a part of his life. I'll not soon forget. God speed George.
Love as ever, Pat Cooke
