“ Deepest condolences to his family and many other friends.

Gene was a good man and friend to me, the first person in my life to challenge my narrow and rigid view of things. He was creative and appreciated the world and the people around him. He liked good music and shared that gift with me. His ready smile and spontaneous energy were his greatest attributes. He was fiercely loyal - sometimes holding onto people and relationships that were long-past their "expiration dates." That said, he accepted others where they were "at," never judging or attempting to change them. In that, he made fast friends. Blessings to you for God's Eternal Peace and Happiness.
